

Baby With The Bathwater

Mark your calendars! December 13 and 14 Wyandotte Community Theatre will be holding open auditions for their second show of the season: Baby With The Bathwater by Christopher Durang. Auditions will begin at 7:00 pm at The Wyandotte Art Center located at 81 Chestnut in Wyandotte. Roles are available for 8 women and 2 men.

A satiric look at family values and childrearing, this black comedy presents hilariously biting observations on how upbringing affects a child's personality and character development.

Young parents Helen and John are unprepared for the homecoming of their new offspring, a bit disappointed that it doesn't seem to speak or understand English and too polite to check its sex, they decide that the child is a girl and name it Daisy—which leads to all sorts of troubles when it turns out years later that Daisy is actually a boy. The saga of Daisy's struggle to establish his/her own identity despite his parents and the bizarre assortment of adults in his life will be performed February 24,25 and March 2,3 2012 at The Wyandotte Arts Center. Those auditioning should be prepared to cold read from the script.